“ It was a pleasure having Jacob as a student in my English class at Walden III. He had a keen wit that matched his sharp mind. He was able to look at things often taken for granted from a new angle and then take that perspective and create a song or a poem or even a joke. That’s what I remember most about Jacob- his sense of humor. I can recall a few times when only two people in class were amused by some announcement or the daily news. I’d look up and see Jacob smiling or laughing. He paid attention to things going on in the world and had his own strong opinions which he freely expressed. I would encounter him once in a while since the Walden days, and I always enjoyed catching up with him. My last words from him were in a comment he had left on a letter to the editor I had written. It just said, “Well said,” and I thought thanks, Jacob, for backing me up. He was a good man-thoughtful, and creative and fun to be around . I’ll miss him and I know so many others will too.-

“ I didn't know Jacob personally, as his Mother Is the Daughter of My Late Fathers, Late Grandfather, but do know that to lose a child must be the most difficult thing a parent can endure. Cindy and Randy must now attempt to deal with such a terrible loss. I pray the two remaining Brothers, can provide some sense of being a FAMILY again, and the importance they play In the Family. I'm certain Cindy, and Grandma Alice will spend much time together, as Grandma Is also very affected. I will pray for all of you to somehow get past this sad time, and remember Jacob, for ALL of the good thing he brought to your Family.
